Gansett Wraps Coming Soon to Storrs Center

Storrs, CT – “Our philosophy at Gansett Wraps is for our customers to enjoy fresh and healthy foods that will enhance their mood and boost their energy,” says Bahaa Mahmoud, an owner of the independent, family-owned restaurant that is scheduled to open in December in Storrs Center. “We are excited about the Storrs Center location for our newest restaurant because we know the population that lives and learns here is interested in healthy food.”

Gansett Wraps will be located at 12 Royce Circle and will be the company’s third restaurant, with two other locations open in Westerly and Narragansett, Rhode Island. Gansett Wraps will offer a variety of eclectic Mediterranean foods, including wraps, pizza, salads, side dishes, and soups, many of which are based on traditional Lebanese recipes. Party platters will also be available.

“Our food will make you feel good about what you eat,” says Mahmoud. “We’re happy to be joining the Storrs Center community and hope for a good start. Read our reviews and give us a try once we open. You’ll be happy you did.”

Storrs Center is a mixed-use town center and main street corridor at the crossroads of the Town of Mansfield, Connecticut and the University of Connecticut. Located along Storrs Road adjacent to the University, the Town Hall, the regional high school, and the community center, Storrs Center knits thoughtful architecture, pedestrian-oriented streets, and public spaces into a series of small neighborhoods that make up the new fabric of the town center. Ground floor retail and commercial uses opening onto landscaped sidewalks reinforce traditional street front activity and is supported by residences above and shared community spaces.
